This is a First Action on the Merits addressing the response dated 29 October 2007. Claims 1-6, 8-10, 12-20 is/are pending. Claims 7 and 11 is/are cancelled. Claims 14-20 is/are withdrawn from consideration. Claims 1-6, 8-10, 12 and 13 is/are examined.

Continued Examination Under 37 CFR 1.114

1. A request for continued examination under 37 CFR 1.114, including the fee set forth in 37 CFR 1.17(e), was filed in this application after final rejection. Since this application is eligible for continued examination under 37 CFR 1.114, and the fee set forth in 37 CFR 1.17(e) has been timely paid, the finality of the previous Office action has been withdrawn pursuant to 37 CFR 1.114. Applicant's submission filed on 29 October 2007 has been entered.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

- 2. The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:
  - (a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negatived by the manner in which the invention was made.

The factual inquiries set forth in Graham v. *John Deere*Co., 383 U.S. 1, 148 USPQ 459 (1966), that are applied for establishing a background for determining obviousness under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) are summarized as follows:

- 1. Determining the scope and contents of the prior art.
- 2. Ascertaining the differences between the prior art and the claims at issue.
- Resolving the level of ordinary skill in the pertinent art.
- Considering objective evidence present in the application indicating obviousness or nonobviousness.

Claims 1-6, 8, 10, 12 and 13 are rejected under 35 U.S.C.

103(a) as being unpatentable over Chen (U.S. Patent No.

4,611,450) in view of Sacks (U.S. Patent No. 6.820.387).

Claim 1: Chen discloses a construction panel (Fig. 2-3) having an outer and inner wire mesh member (223, located on both sides of the panel) that are screeds, and a middle member (Fig. 1: 10, 14, 16 and 18) disposed between the outer and inner mesh members and positioned to define a first gap (see Fig. 1, space between the middle member and mesh member) between the middle member and outer member and a second gap (opposing side) between the middle member and the inner mesh member. Chen does not specifically disclose the screed having at least two outwardly projecting screed ridges extending a length of the outer wire mesh member. Sacks discloses a construction panel (Fig. 7: 36), having a screed member (Fig. 6) defining at least two outwardly projecting screed ridges (14) extending the length of an outer wire mesh member. It would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to use the screed member in Sacks with the panel in Chen because the purpose of the screed member in Sacks is designed to reduce cracking in stucco (Abstract, line 10) and would perform adequately with the panel in Chen.

Art Unit: 3635

Claim 2: the phrase "adapted to accept a dowel for securing said panel" is a statement of intended use of the claimed invention and must result in a structural difference between the claimed invention and the prior art in order to patentably distinguish the claimed invention from the prior art. If the prior art structure is capable of performing the intended use, then it meets the claim.

Claim 3: the middle member of Chen comprises a plurality of layers (Fig. 1: 10, 14, 16, 18) comprising wire trusses (211) and polystyrene foam (Abstract, line 11).

Claim 4: Chen in view of Sacks discloses the claimed invention including that the middle member (212) would be in a compressed state (which would occur when the stucco is applied), but the prior art of record does not disclose the compression is 2.5 inches. It would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to compress to this degree as a matter of design choice because Applicant did not state a criticality for the necessity of this limitation and the prior art of record is capable of being compressed in such a manner.

Art Unit: 3635

Claim 5: while the ridges in Chen in view of Sacks are V-shaped (see Figure 1, below for clarification), and have a depth of about ½ inch (Col. 7, lines 3 and 4), the specifics of the dimensions of the width of the panel. It would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art as a matter of design choice to have these dimensions because Applicant failed to state a criticality for the necessity of these limitations and the prior art of record is capable of conforming to the limitations.

Claim 6: Chen in view of Sacks discloses 2 parallel V-Shaped impressions (see above) defined in at least the outer wire mesh member.

Claim 8: Chen discloses means for securing the wire mesh member to the middle member (by through the truss member (232)

Claim 10: Chen in view of Sacks discloses an outer layer

(Chen: Claim 8), but not that the V-shaped impressions are used as a screed. It would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to use the V-shaped impressions (see above) as a screed in order to prevent the waste of stucco applied to the surface.

Claims 12 and 13: Chen in view of Sacks disclose the claimed invention except for the dimensions as claimed, though Sacks notes that any dimension may be created (Col. 7, lines 23-

Art Unit: 3635

25). It would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art as a matter of design choice to have these limitations because Applicant failed to state a criticality for the necessity of these dimensions and the prior art of record is capable of meeting these limitations.

Claim 9 is rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Chen in view of Sacks as applied to claim 8 above, and further in view of Rockstead (U.S. Patent No. 4,104,842) and Salisbury (U.S. Patent No. 4,660,342).

Claim 9: Chen in view of Sacks discloses the claimed invention except for the use of hog rings and a Z-clip.

Rockstead discloses a construction panel that uses hog rings

(Col. 3, lines 41, 42) to attach to a wall system and Salisbury discloses the use of a Z-clip (Fig. 4: 49) in conjunction with a ring (50) to attach a panel to a wall. It would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to use the hog ring and Z-clip in conjunction with the panel in Chen in view of Sacks in order to securely attach the panel to another structural surface.

Response to Arguments

3. The following addresses applicant's remarks dated 27 August 2007.

Drawing objections/claim objections/35 USC 112 rejections:

Applicant's amendments as noted overcome the objections and they are therefore withdrawn.

Claim rejections under 35 USC 103:

The examiner respectfully disagrees with applicant's claim language addressing "at least two outwardly projecting screed ridges" [emphasis added]. The prior art as claimed denotes "two outwardly extending projecting screed ridges" as claimed (Sacks: 14, cited above). The examiner respectfully notes that the applicant does not provide further limitation as to what is projected outwardly: only a "ridge"; therefore, the examiner contends that portion Sacks element 14 is an outward projection. The applicant provides some limitation to the projection in claims 5 and 6 (the "V-shaped impression"). The examiner respectfully contends, however, that this limitation is very broad and that the prior art of record still discloses a "V-shaped impression" (see rejection above).
